

TRANSITION TO WORK (TTW)

Transition to Work employment service helps young people aged 15-24 into work (including apprenticeships and training) or education.

What is Transition to Work?

Transition to Work (TtW) helps young people aged 15 -24 years develop the skills, behaviours and attitudes employers are looking for. You'll get practical support to help you complete school, move onto further education or employment and provide post placement support when you start a new job.

What's in it for me?

You will get help to build work and personal skills, through training, work experience, education and community services. Real Futures your TtW provider will talk to you about things like apprenticeships, internships, how to build your skills and confidence, and link you up with employers looking for young people willing to give things a go. You will also get support once you have started training or work. Real Futures consultants are here to listen and help you stay motivated.

What do I have to do in TtW?

A Transition to Work Provider will work with you to find the best mix of activities and services to help you achieve your goals. This may include:

- capability development and adult life skills
- career guidance
- access to job-specific training, work experience and internships
- job search and interview preparation and support
- networking with local employers
- supporting you and your employer to help you stay in a job
- connecting with local support services, such as housing assistance or mental health support.

What will your commitment be?

You're generally expected to participate in Transition to Work for 25 hours per week for up to 18 months. If you're experiencing complex barriers, this may be extended to 24 months

Am I eligible for Transition to Work?

To participate in Transition to Work, you must be aged 15 to 24.

It will also depend on whether you:
